

London School
of Jewish Studies

LSJS Student Code of Conduct Policy

This code of conduct outlines the expectations of LSJS ensuring that every member of the University community is treated, and treats others, with dignity and respect. It emphasises the importance of maintaining a culture free from bullying, harassment and discrimination.

All members of the University community share the responsibility to uphold this Code and to address instances where others fail to do so.

The Code applies to all students on the LSJS campus.

Breaches of this Code of Conduct could lead to disciplinary action.

The Student Code of Conduct

All students should:

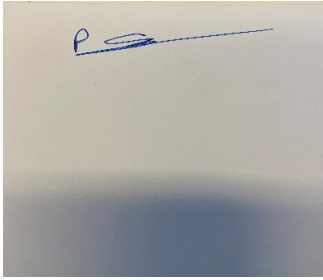

- Act with integrity and honesty in all academic and non-academic activities
- Treat all fellow students, staff and community members with respect and dignity
- Uphold the values of academic freedom and equality
- Refrain from any form of harassment, bullying or discrimination
- Contribute to maintaining an inclusive environment where diverse perspectives are valued
- Respect university property and the property of others
- Comply with all applicable laws, regulations and university policies

Reporting Inappropriate Behaviour

Individuals who have experienced or witnessed inappropriate behaviour by a student are encouraged to raise their concerns quickly.

Please refer to the LSJS incident of concern procedure and reporting form found at <https://www.lsjs.ac.uk/degrees.php>

Signed on behalf of LSJS:

A photograph of a handwritten signature in blue ink on a light-colored surface. The signature is stylized and appears to be 'P. Gould'.

(Paul Gould, on behalf of senior leadership team, LSJS).

Date: December 2024

To be reviewed in December 2025